Lecture Week

Lecture Week is an annual affair of Abilene Christian College conducted during the latter part of each February. Leading men of the brotherhood are gathered here at that time and they deliver lectures on some outstanding Biblical subject or problem.

The Lecture Week this year was one of the greatest in the history of the institution. On this occasion there were over sixty visiting preachers from Texas and adjoining states, not taking into consideration those who make their homes in Abilene. Many others from far and near were also present to enjoy these meetings.

From the standpoint of lectures as a whole, the ones delivered this year seemed to be superior to any that had been delivered heretofore.

Good interest and great crowds were characteristic of all of the services which were held. Even though three lectures were held each day, the people responded well to them. Lectures were conducted each night in the Gymnasium so that all of the people could be accommodated. There were present each night from fifteen hundred to two thousand people.

The lectures delivered were all inspiring and uplifting. The principal speaker on this occasion was Brother Hall Laurie Calhoun of Tennessee. Brother Calhoun is among the most remarkable personages of the brotherhood today, and the lecture he delivered on, "What Christ May Mean to a Human Soul," will not be forgotten soon by those who heard him speak on this subject.
