Book Review: FRIENDS BEYOND MEASURE

Harwin and Ana become great friends as soon as they meet. They chart everything they do in hours or times accomplished. They chart their agreements and disagreements and know each other very well. Ana loves noise and adventures while Harwin prefers quiet places and calm activities. They try different crafts, different experiments, make their own stories using chickens, and use colorful charts to record their adventures. Then one day, Ana tells Harwin she is moving far away. The girls make the most of all the time they have left together but are very sad when it is time for Ana to move. They find different ways to stay in touch and plan for the future when they will be together again.

The story is full of different and very creative charts to use in many subject areas in a classroom. The back material includes an explanation of the different charts used in the story. Add this colorful book to your collection for your readers who like to think outside the box.
