Dear Bro. Colson:

Your last was rec'd
last week, and I am
crowded to an extent that I am afraid that I am neglecting
many things, and am not well
either; and afraid that I will not be too good weather
some.

To day with larger audience than we ever get into the house.

Last meeting closed
with 14 - a delicious,
all "new material!"

I am rushing from one meeting to another
with no rest.

The best that I can tell you is that I am going all I can to get there with out just
letting my work
pass unattended to
and that would be right, I think.

Do not announce
the Garrisonian
meeting yet. I am not able to set up our side
and I never want
a disappoinment.
Let every thing
be ready and later
we will set time
and I'll try to meet it be too late.

Write me again.
I hope to be more
prompt next time.
Kindly & fraternally,
W. A. Dutton
