Book Review: INSIDE MY HOME

Children learn about basic needs at a very young age. This book encourages them to read about houses and the basic need of shelter. It shows four different parts of the house with different children. As a predictable book, it includes the same phrase on each page: This is my ... followed by a sentence describing what happens in that room. Young children in first grade can read this book on their own and learn more about homes. The illustrations are full page photos of real people in houses, a good choice as opposed to clip art or drawn illustrations. The text is within a white rectangle on the right-side page. Included at the back of the book is an index of terms and three pictures of items to find in the book, like the toothbrush.
